He practices in the Firm's intellectual property, business litigation, and employment law practice groups, and leads the Firm's trademark counseling practice group.

With a focus on intellectual property disputes, employment law, competition law, and professional malpractice matters, Jake has built a reputation for his advocacy in federal courts, particularly in the District of New Jersey. His practice spans a range of diverse industries, and he brings significant experience to matters involving patent infringement, Hatch-Waxman ANDA litigation, and multi-jurisdictional intellectual property issues. In addition to his litigation experience, Jake guides his clients through the maze of intellectual property rights issues. His strategic advice extends to trademark portfolio management, where he has successfully advised some of the world's leading global brands. From the clearance and registration of trademarks to enforcing rights through infringement actions, Jake ensures that his clients' intellectual property assets are protected and optimized.

Jake is a respected thought leader in the intellectual property community. He is a Master of the John C. Prior to joining Saiber, Jake clerked for the Hon. William Matthew Byrne, Jr., on the United States District Court for the Central District of California, following a year as a litigation
