

N.J. Human Resources Law Alert, May 2008

April 30, 2008

Disability Discrimination: Court Dismisses Suit by Recovering Alcoholic

The United States District Court in New Jersey recently dismissed a case brought by a recovering alcoholic who had returned to work after FMLA leave and claimed that he was wrongfully terminated for failing a random breath test.